DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 2, 5, and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Klaveness (US 6,159,445). Klaveness discloses a method of generating an image of a human or of a small mammal other than a human being by administering a contrast agent to the body and create a light image of a region of interest (col. 8 line 3-10). The region of interest can be any part of the body such as for detection of a lymph node such as a sentinel lymph node (col. 10 line 37-40). The contrast agent can comprise a fluorophore which preferably has a characteristic emission in the 600-1300 nm range (col. 10 line 18-21) and has a diameter of about 5 to 800 nm (col. 17 line 6-11). In particular Klaveness discloses using a particle having a diameter of approximately 120 nm to image a rat (col. 28 line 22-30).

3. Claims 1, 2, 5, and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Snow (US 6,350,431 B1). Snow discloses compounds that are useful as contrast agents in light imaging procedures, in particular compounds containing a plurality of chromophores which have an emission maxima in the visible to far infra-red range (includes the 600-900 nm range) and sizes from 10-5000 nm (col. 1 line 9-56, col. 54 line 27-33). The contrast agents can be used for imaging a human or an animal and can be used for detecting the sentinel lymph node (col. 8 line 33-35, col. 8 line 55-59).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 4, 6, 8, and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Snow. Snow discloses most of what is claimed as discussed above except for explicitly disclosing using particles that have at least part of the surface constituted by organopolysiloxane. Snow does disclose that the particles can comprise polymeric units such as polysiloxane (col. 47 line 15) so it would therefore be obvious to use any well known polysiloxane such as organopolysiloxane.
